

Astrophotography – Fine art prints now available

A new section has been launched on the website* showing images that have been captured in the last couple of years. Partly with the Celestron SC 14-inch Edge HD on the trailer dome prototype but also with a Planewave CDK 17-inch belonging to the national association of amateur astronomers SAAF in Sweden.

SAAF's observatory is remotely controlled and located high up in the mountains in the south of Spain. Members can thus book and manage their sessions via a simple browser interface. Which indeed represents an excellent opportunity for high-quality capturing compared to what most nights in Sweden possibly could offer.

All images represent authentic astrophotography without any artificially generated features.

The prints are produced with the highest quality of fine art paper, ink and printers available on the market.

All prints can further be exposed with or without front glass due to a protective top layer from the reputable company Hahnemühle in Germany.

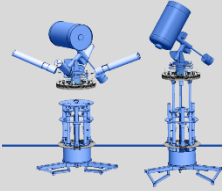

Every print comes with a small data sheet describing the night sky object together with a technical card describing some key capturing and processing details for the image.

This in addition to the discreet identification on every image itself, see example in the lower right corner of the Bubble nebula image here to the left.

The following page shows a few examples but please look up the website* for a complete overview along with information about how to acquire such fine art prints, with or without frames and passepartouts.

Clear skies //  Anders Hjelset

*) If the website link should not work, for whatever reason, you could just copy this IP address into your browser: <https://trailerdomes.com/astrophoto/>

Astrophotography – Fine art prints now available

Below are examples showing the four standard print sizes with frames and passepartouts. Sizes refer to the frames (glass area). Other sizes could be printed on request (longest side max 120 cm). Prints are even available without frames and passepartouts.

Please look up the website for all available prints along with details concerning pricing, ordering and shipping.

No 5 – Whirlpool

60 x 50 cm

No 8 – Horsehead

42 x 60 cm

No 4 – Sombrero

50 x 60 cm

No 12 – Hercules

60 x 42 cm